

Greetings!

We are excited to share our January newsletter which includes updates on our impactful programs and events. Thank you for making these results possible and for helping children to be safe at home!

Safe At Home Presents At National Conference

This past December, our program team participated in the 2016 Winter Institute of the U.S. Department of Justice Office on Violence Against Women (OVW) Consolidated Youth grantees in San Diego. Safe at Home was invited to lead a workshop and breakout session exploring our approaches in using creative arts.

During this session we shared some of our successes and best practices for youth-informed and youth-led work, highlighting two programs in particular that we have been able to expand through our OVW funding: Our Alumni Intern Program, and growing a pipeline of youth leadership; and our Multi-Modal Art Survivors Group, where participants develop their own voice through art and expression.

Pictured here is Juanita Viera, MP Counselor and Creative Art Therapist, presenting on our multi-modal arts group and engaging session participants in a group art activity that they could take back to their home agencies. Through this session and workshop, participating grantees were able to learn how art can be used as a tool to empower youth to express themselves and/or provide opportunities for youth to take on leadership roles that can be incorporated into current programming.

Peer-Leader Led Workshop On Sexual Violence Awareness

Peer Leaders are youth ambassadors for Margaret's Place and are trained in public speaking, conflict mediation, and violence and abuse and play an active role in educating their peers. They participated in a peer-led workshop on sexual violence and how to be empowered to change this culture in schools with the help of The Talk Project!
