

Greetings!

With 2018 coming to a close, we've had a busy fall season: our students are settled back in with our counselors and our first awareness campaigns of the school year have come to a close. Our new peer leaders are getting the training they need to support their classmates and become advocates, and our work is making headlines and being celebrated by supporters like you.

Check out some highlights from the past few months:

Raising the volume on domestic violence awareness

This year, students at all of our locations commemorated Domestic Violence Awareness Month by running school-wide awareness campaigns in October. Our schools featured an activity that encouraged students to think about how they can make change and how they can speak out against violence. Our counselors also shared information on how to identify warning signs of abuse and violence, and how to get help. A visit with Unilever

In addition to directly supporting children and teens who are exposed to trauma and violence, Safe At Home's work seeks to end the cycle of violence by building awareness nationwide. Last week, our Chairman and Co-Founder Joe Torre and our Executive Director Yolanda Jimenez spoke to employees at Unilever at their New Jersey headquarters about our mission, and what they can do to end violence. We're grateful for the opportunity not just to build awareness, but also to strengthen our relationship with Unilever. Visit Our Updates page to learn more about our panel with Unilever.

On November 15, we hosted our 16th Annual Gala. In spite of the inclement weather, we had an incredible evening and were able to connect our supporters to our tremendous work this year. The evening included a 'pinch hitter' emcee Michael Kay, a panel of baseball experts who celebrated the 20 year anniversary of the World Series Champion Yankees, and honoree Gina Boswell (President of Customer Development at Unilever). Thank you to our dinner committee for leadership, to our donors and sponsors for their support, and to our incredible team of celebrities for making the evening so unique. On the air

Safe At Home gave an in-depth interview on WVOX's Your Community in Action segment in October. Our incredible staff gave host Arlene Salman a close look at what we do, and why our model works. Take a listen now!

Meet Kara

"Unfortunately, there were a lot of unhealthy things going on for me – but coming to Safe At Home helped steer me in a new direction." Before she joined our staff as an alumni intern for two years, Kara was a student at our location in Brooklyn. Read more about her journey with Safe At Home now!

Make a gift

As the year comes to a close, we hope you've seen the tremendous impact Safe At Home has had. We know that there's more on the horizon for us in 2019 – and that when the school year ends in June, our total number of students supported since our founding will be close to 100,000. None of this work would be possible without supporters like you. Please consider making a gift to Safe At Home today.
