

Greetings!

As the school year comes to a close, Safe At Home is wrapping up another year at our 15 locations nationwide. Our final months of programming have been action packed – we celebrated 8 years of services in Los Angeles at our annual LA Dinner, commemorated Denim Day, launched new partnerships, and so much more. Check out some highlights from Safe At Home.

Peer Leaders Take a Stand

Each spring, all of our peer leaders identify an issue that is impacting their community and then take a stand by raising awareness and providing resources on that topic. This year, our peer leaders chose topics such as peace and kindness, suicide prevention and mental health promotion, ending sexual assault, community violence and youth activism, colorism, and more. Through their hard work and their passion to educate others, we reached more than 12,000 young people nationwide. Learn more about our awareness campaigns.

Guardian Protection Teams Up with Safe At Home & MiLB

The last two years, Safe At Home has partnered with Minor League Baseball (MiLB) to hold a domestic violence awareness night at ballparks across the country and to raise funds to support local organizations in those communities. This year, we're expanding the partnership to include Guardian Protection. In addition to our awareness nights – now reaching more than 100 teams nationwide – Guardian has also selected 13 teams for a unique fundraising opportunity. ## Denim Day Activism

Our staff and alumni interns packed their schedules to commemorate Denim Day on April 24 – an annual event for sexual assault awareness. This year, our

New York City team joined the official Denim Day Rally in the morning, led an awareness art activity at Unilever's headquarters in the afternoon, and capped off the night with a rally and community awareness fair in Washington Heights with other local organizations, park officials, and police officers. ## Celebrating 8 Years in Los Angeles

This year, we are celebrating 8 years of providing healing and empowerment to children impacted by trauma, violence, and abuse in Los Angeles. To commemorate the milestone, Safe At Home hosted our annual Los Angeles Dinner on April 25, at the Sunset Tower Hotel. 150 of our closest friends and supporters gathered to celebrate our work, including celebrities, athletes, and industry leaders. ## Dancing for a Cause

Each year, Safe At Home has had the honor of being chosen as an official charity partner of local performance company, Dance Works. The organization provides high-quality dance education, enriching the lives of their performers by encouraging creativity, self-confidence, and philanthropy. This year's event in late March included diverse works, ranging from ballet, jazz, modern, musical theatre, hip hop, and more – with proceeds supporting our work at Safe At Home. We'd like to thank our incredible partners at Dance Works – and be sure to check out some beautiful photographs of their performance.

Co-Founders Share Safe At Home with New Audiences

We are so grateful for the many partnership opportunities Safe At Home has had in the last few months – from the Yogi Berra Museum, to Barings, the Atlantic Dermatological Conference, and more. Our co-founders Ali and Joe Torre have paid a visit to these supporters - and several more - this spring, spreading the news about Safe At Home along the way. Check out a recap of each of these events!

Mark your calendars!

On July 25, 2019, Safe At Home will be hosting our annual Celebrity Golf & Tennis Classic! Select sponsors will get a chance to be paired up with sports celebs and icons at our all-day affair at the exclusive Sleepy Hollow Country Club. Current confirmed celebrities include Rick Cerone, Ken Dashow, John Flaherty, Ari Fleischer, Aaron Krickstein, and Bob Wischusen - with more names to come soon!
